"Expansion" Sale.

Everything in Stock Reduced

To Make Room for Builders.

BEGINNING tomorrow morning the sweeping reductions which have characterized this "Expansion" Sale will be extended to every line of goods in the store. Fully one-half of our present floor space must be cleared for the use of the builders who are now waiting to begin work on the new extension. We much prefer to sell the stock at a sacrifice rather than store it, hence this storeful of unusual bargains in thoroughly high-class merchandise.

There are no "seconds," no job lots, no imperfect productions in this stock. Everything is of first quality—everything is new and desirable. And being direct importers and buying only of leading makers every article shown bears the stamp of exclusive quality and style.

Among the lines reduced are Ladies' Tailor-made Suits, Walking Skirts, Golf Capes, Jackets, choice creations in Colored Silk and Cotton Waists, superb Robes, fine Parasols, new Neckwear, rich Black and Colored Dress Goods, Garnitures, Nets, Silks, choice White and Colored Wash Goods, Table Linens, fine Laces, Embroideries, Hosiery, Corsets, Ribbons, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, etc.

This sale affords a rare opportunity to discriminating buyers—the chance of a lifetime to secure the elegant, the refined in merchandise at generous savings.

COL. ALBA'S SURRENDER

DESCRIPTION OF THE EVENT BY
LIEUT. JAMES LYNCH, U. S. M. C.

Interesting Letter to His Father,
Which Gives a Graphic View of Filipino Character.

Mr. John Lynch, Jr., of this city has received an interesting letter from his son, Lieut. James Lynch, U. S. M. C., who is stationed at the United States arsenal, Olongapo, Schieffelin day, in the Philippines. In the course of his missive Lieut. Lynch says he has built himself a small house about 200 yards from headquarters near the beach. Describing the structure, he writes: "I have one big room, which has three doors, one opening into a small bath room in the rear, the others opening on a porch, which runs around two sides of the house. Most of my time is spent on the porch, and for the last week I have slept there. The house is of bamboo and nipa, just like the native houses, and very cool and comfortable. It cost $75 Mexican to build, or a little over $37 in our money. I have a very good servant."

Continuing, Lieut. Lynch wrote as follows:

Spent a Night With Insurrection.

"Last Thursday we heard shots fired across the bay. They were fired by the Filipino Col. Alba, to attract our attention. His adjutant and bugler came in under a flag of truce to talk over terms of surrender. We opened up champagne for them and treated them cordially. When they left I got Col. Goodrell's permission and returned with them to visit the camp, and stayed over night. I told them about the free and equal principles of the Constitution of the United States and talked with their colonel until 3 a.m. He then gave me a blanket and a pillow to turn in with on the ground. They had fun with me. They told me they were going to hold me as a prisoner of war, and when I said I didn't mind, they said they would release me in the morning and that I could write home that I had been a prisoner in an insurrecto camp for one night. Next morning Col. Alba introduced me to his wife, who has been with him in the field and the camp for over two years. Col. Alba was the one who shot us up on the gunboat last spring, about which I wrote you, and Mrs. Alba was present on that occasion. She is a very good looking. She gave me a cigarette, lit one herself and, after we had a chat, Col. Alba sent me home in a canoe."

The Surrender.

"Yesterday morning, April 8, the whole outfit came in and surrendered their arms and ammunition and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. It was the biggest surrender so far in this part of the island. Earlier in the morning Colonel Goodrell sent Captain Draper out across the causeway to meet Alba and his troops and sent me with him as aid to escort them in for the surrender. Our command was drawn up at the arsenal gate in battalion front to receive them, and after they got into the yard they were formed in line and Alba made a speech to them. They then surrendered their rifles and ammunition and took the oath. Among the rifles was one which belonged to Welsh, one of our men who was killed by them up the river a year ago. I have started a subscription among the men of his old company who came here originally to buy this rifle from the government and sent it home to Welsh's people."

"Among the men who surrendered was Captain Billigan, who commanded the Filipino camp we burned a few weeks ago up on the mountain top. He said he saw us coming, that he had more men than he did, and so they ran. He also said he knew my face, having seen me many times when I was out with detachments on scouting trips. He said that when he returned to his camp after we burned it the only things that remained were ashes and three pet monkeys. Two of the Filipino officers who surrendered gave me their daggers, which they wear as a decoration. One of them said we were now brothers, and for me to keep the daggers to remember them by. Lieut. Lynch has been acting as captain of Company H for the past four months, and at present is the only officer in the company."

WANAMAKER OFFERS $2,500,000

For Street Railway Franchises About to Be Given Away.

A dispatch from Philadelphia last night says: Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker today sent a letter to Mayor Ashbridge offering to pay to the city $2,500,000 for the powers, rights and franchises granted and intended to be granted by fourteen ordinances of council now awaiting the mayor's approval.

These fourteen ordinances give to a number of capitalists who are friendly to the dominant faction in the republican party in this state the right to construct underground and elevated railways on streets now occupied by surface railway companies and to build surface roads on those streets not occupied by other companies.

The speed with which the enabling acts were passed by the legislature and the fact that the Union Traction Company, which occupies most of the streets of the city, will contest the granting of the privileges, along with Albert Johnson, who desires to construct street railways and charge 3-cent fares. Up to this time Mr. Wanamaker had not figured in the matter, but his participation in the granting of the franchises does not come with surprise.

Mr. Wanamaker, in his letter, says he believes the franchises granted by these ordinances are of enormous money value; that the people will get nothing for these franchises; passengers will be crowded, transportation, and that the only gainers will be those financially interested in the project. He urges the mayor to veto the ordinances before they are passed, and that the franchises may be drafted conferring the franchises in question only upon the payment of a sum of money into the public treasury commensurate to the value of the grant.

Mr. Wanamaker says he will cheerfully pay the sum of $2,500,000, but suggests that if the new ordinances required the franchises to be put up at auction and sold to the highest bidder, the amount largely in excess of that which he had offered could be readily secured. His offer, he continues, is merely an indication in concrete form of the magnitude of the gift conferred upon private citizens without return to the people. "It seems to me," he concludes, "that to give away such franchises for nothing when others stand ready to pay millions for the same rights is little short of public plunder."

In order that the offer might reach the mayor before he signed the ordinances Mr. Wanamaker prepared two letters. One was sent to the mayor's private residence and the other was personally handed to the mayor by Mr. Wanamaker's secretary during the exercises incident to the formal acceptance of the gift of the franchises by the United States government. The instant the mayor recognized the handwriting of Mr. Wanamaker he threw the letter into the crowd without reading it. The mayor and Mr. Wanamaker are not on friendly terms. The mayor spent the entire evening up to midnight in his office, and it was presumed that he was going over the ordinances. He refused to be seen by newspaper reporters, and what action he will take in the matter of approving the ordinances is not officially known, but it is generally believed that he will give them his approval.

END OF A UNIQUE EXPERIENCE.

Disbandment of the China Relief Expedition.

"The China relief expedition, as an organization, will be discontinued at 12 o'clock midnight, Sunday, May 12, 1901," reads an extract from the last paragraph of an order issued by General Chaffee, disbanding the expedition. The order is solving one of the most unique and brilliant military organizations which the United States has ever sent into battle. Moreover it enjoyed the distinction, unknown to the American army since the days of the revolution, of fighting shoulder to shoulder with seasoned foreign allies. The order, which is dated at Pekin, May 12, 1901, reads:
